U.S., Russia to Propose Nuclear Curb

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union plan to submit to the Geneva Disarmament Conference shortly a joint proposal for a treaty to curb the spread of nuclear weapons.

When the treaty draft goes before the 17-nation disarmament group, probably within the next few days, it may still be minus a provision for safeguards against violations.

U.S.-Soviet negotiators have been unable for months to agree on the safeguards, or inspection, clause. But U.S. diplomats are hopeful of reaching Big Two accord on this soon after submitting the proposed treaty at Geneva, if not by then.

This became known today following a dinner meeting Tuesday night between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at the headquarters of the Soviet U.N. mission.

The Rusk-Gromyko session, a followup to the conferences last weekend between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, apparently finished the last phase of the summitry of Glassboro, N.J., the site of the Johnson-Kosygin parleys.

Rusk had no further appointments with Gromyko scheduled. He arranged to return to Washington to report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the Cabinet today.

Creditors May Receive Stock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A plan by which the common creditors of the insolvent Twentieth Century Foods Corp. of Salem would be issued stock in the firm was approved Tuesday in federal District Court by Judge J. Smith Henley.

The stock is to be issued in place of claims by the creditors totaling $272,000.

Under the plan the bondholders will exchange bonds for new ones with half the face value and will be issued stock for the other half. The state of Arkansas owns $107,500 of the bonds which have a face value of $220,000.

Reorganization of the firm was considered the only alternative to bankruptcy. At least two thirds of the creditors dollar-wise have accepted the reorganization plan.

UN Session Near End, No Agreement

By CHARLES STORER
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly, nearing the end of its general debate on the Middle East crisis, remained far from agreement today on its best course to ease the bitter Arab-Israeli conflict.

"Everything is very much in a melting pot—nothing is crystallized yet," said one Asian diplomat close to the search for a resolution that could attract wide support among the 122 U.N. members.

Eleven nations were on the speakers' list for today's meetings, including Foreign Minister J.M.A.H. Luns of the Netherlands and Foreign Minister Georges Hakim of Lebanon. Fifteen nations are to present their views Thursday.

The general debate is scheduled to end Friday. A U.N. spokesman said assembly President Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan hopes to obtain agreement then on a deadline for submission of new resolutions.

The assembly has before it three resolutions—from the United States, the Soviet Union and Albania. None is given a chance of obtaining, in its present form, the two-thirds vote necessary for approval.

Johnson Criticizes His Critics

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — President Johnson, ad libbing freely and drawing thunderous applause from a convention of youthful businessmen, has strongly defended his policies and crisply criticized his critics. In a speech that had the ring of campaign oratory, the President assailed the "cussers and doubters" and asked support from "doers and builders" to carry out his policies at home and in Vietnam.

Johnson disputed claims by antiwar critics that war costs are curtailing sharply antipov-erty programs.

He told 10,000 Junior Chamber of Commerce members and their wives that when he became president the United States was in Vietnam but had no antipov-erty program. Despite the war, said Johnson, antipov-erty funds have been hiked every year "without tucking tail and running in Vietnam."

Often interrupted by cheers and applause, the President drew his biggest ovation when he told his listeners to tell their friends and families back home that: "It is not essential, it is not required for them to tear our country down and our flag up in order to lift them up." That statement, couched in sarcastic tones, came after the President said 94 per cent of the world's people would like to exchange places with Americans—who despite comprising only 6 per cent of the world's population, he noted have 50 per cent of its wealth.

The girl who "no's" her way around doesn't have to worry about the local wolves.

LET'S TALK ABOUT MOVIES

By VELDA SEAMANS

Don't miss tonight at the Saenger the last showing of "Seconds", a truly different role for handsome Rock Hudson. It's a thriller.

Then tomorrow Elvis comes to town in his newest color hit called, "Double Trouble," in which he plays a dual role, which makes it twice as good. We also had so many who liked our cartoon feature "Alakazam" on our vacation movies show, we are holding it over for an early showing Friday night and also Saturday matinee along with Elvis. Don't miss this special treat.

Remember "The Magnificent 7" - it was the surprise Western of the past two years - now comes its new sequel "The Return of the 7." Yul Brynner once again proves he can be a tough westerner, bald head and all. It's good outdoor action in big screen color.

For July 4th the Saenger brings the whole family fun with two Jerry Lewis screamingly funny comedies - "Errand Boy" and "Cinderella."

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bettel

THAT "HOOK" MAY STAB HER IN THE BACK

Dear Helen: I have an unmarried friend in her late 20's whose philosophy is "hook the sucker." She has her eye on a fellow at our office. He's in his 50's, married, well-off, and kind of dumb. She figures to take him away from his wife and four kids, stay with him until she gets most of his money, and then live it up as a young divorcee. She's playing up to him for all she's worth, and then she laughs at him for a fool. So far, he hasn't tumbled, but she says, "Give him time - they always fall."

Helen, he's a nice guy with a lovely wife and I don't want to see this happen. Should I warn someone she's about to sink in her hooks? - NEW GIRL AT THE OFFICE

Dear New: I'd say your aging friend is more fool than menace. If her "hook" hasn't snagged a sucker in some 10 years of try-she's using the wrong bait. Ask around, and you may discover she's known as Available Annie, the office joke. - H

Dear Helen: My husband was stationed in Europe for a year, in a remote area. He was unhappy, lonely and bored. When he came home the children and I tried to make it up to him. But he became involved with another person over there, and that person still writes to him. Because

Miniskirted Girls Find Seats Horrible

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) - Miniskirted girls riding London subways are finding new seats unbearable on their bare skin.

"It's a terrible shock to sit down on one of those seats early in the morning," explained one girl.

Railway Review, official magazine of the National Union of Railwaymen, says "London Transport is receiving a number of complaints" about fiber-glass seats on the Inner Circle line. The London subway is operated by London Transport. A spokesman said: "We shall bear in mind the views of the miniskirted young ladies. Of course, we have some people who like these seats better than the old ones. The fiber-glass seats are experimental, and we are waiting for the public's reaction."

Most London dollys wear body stockings or tights beneath their minis in autumn, winter and spring. With the warmer days, they've returned to ordinary stockings. This leaves a patch of bare flesh between stocking top and panty bottom. This is the area that's causing the trouble.

The Railway Review said the seats were shaped to accommodate the body but admitted that early in the morning they can be cold. The magazine said other passengers find the seats too hard.

"London Transport may unwittingly have dealt a blow at the miniskirt," it observed.

he tried to hide the letter, I found it and read it. I was horrified at the intimacy, and I learned they plan to meet again. If they do, it will appear innocent, for you see, the other person is a man!

I can't believe this of my husband and it has made me sick. I'm sure it is just this one person, but what can I do? Do I confess I sneaked into his hidden letter, or must I live with this secret and hope I never have to really face it? - T.Y.

Dear T: To face the truth is much better than to live with crushing suspicion. Your husband needs help and he knows it. Why else would he have let you find that letter? It's possible he wants no more of this situation, but "the other person" won't leave him alone.

A talk with a psychiatrist might show you both that an isolated experience doesn't brand a man as homosexual - but hidden guilt and a wife's revulsion can push him over the line. - H

Dear Helen: I am a victim of cerebral palsy. When you mentioned the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, I had to write and tell you what a wonderful job it does, for I am a trainee in such a center, studying to become a bookkeeper. I will be here a year.

Helen, people come here almost without hope, and they learn to live with their handicaps, go on to lead productive, self-supporting lives, and be proud of their achievements. - A TRAINEE, AGE 19

Dear Helen: I am in love with a married man. Familiar story? But with us it's different. (NOTE FROM H: THAT'S A familiar story too!)

He's very jealous of me, won't let me date anyone else. He wants to divorce his wife, but has so many bills that he can't manage it. I told him I'd help pay for the divorce and work to provide child support, and I'd also love his children as if they were my own, but he's afraid to make the plunge. Surely with love on my side, I'll find a way. - WON'T IT?

Dear W: For every "way" you find, this man will find an excuse to stay married. Walk out of his life and slam the door behind you - it's the only way you'll ever find self-respect. - H

Big 3 All Stars Are Not Healthy

Carl Yastrzemski, still groggy from the effects of a persistent head cold, is the healthiest member of the American League's Big Three.

Yastrzemski had the sniffles today after returning to the Boston Red Sox lineup in Tuesday night's 3-2 victory over Minnesota. But Al Kaline and Frank Robinson, the other two-thirds of the AL All-Star outfield, were far less fortunate.

Kaline, Detroit's injury-prone superstar, all but knocked himself out of the July 11 classic when he broke his right hand in a rare fit of temper during the slumping Tigers' 0-1 loss to Cleveland.

And Robinson, Baltimore's non-pareil slugger, was nursing a giant-size headache after suffering a slight concussion in a baseline collision with Chicago second baseman Al Wels as the first-place White Sox trimmed the Orioles 5-0.

Wels, however, was the unluckiest of all. He's out for the season with torn ligaments in his left knee.

In Tuesday night's other AL games the Washington Senators drubbed California 9-4 and the New York Yankees edged Kansas City 2-1 after losing their doubleheader opener 10-2.

The New York Mets whipped Pittsburgh 5-2; Philadelphia stopped the Chicago Cubs 4-2; Atlanta bombed Houston 13-5; Los Angeles blanked Cincinnati 9-0 and San Francisco shut out St. Louis 6-0 in National League play.

Kaline, struck out by Cleveland's Sam McDowell in the sixth inning, returned to the dugout and slammed his bat into the bat rack, fracturing a metacarpal bone in his hand. He'll be out two or three weeks, according to Dr. Russell Wright, the Tigers' physician.

The 32-year-old outfielder, who led All-Star balloting with 242 of a possible 247 votes, was hitting .328, with 15 homers and 53 runs batted in. His freak injury, coupled with Detroit's month-long slump, dampens Tiger hopes for their first pennant since 1945.

McDowell scattered eight hits and Chico Salmon drove in four runs with two doubles and a homer as the Indians extended Detroit's losing string to four games.

Robinson and Wels were injured when the Baltimore star slid into second base, breaking up a double play in the fourth inning. Robinson lay unconscious for five minutes. Both players then were sent to Baltimore's Sinai Hospital for X rays.

Robinson suffered a concussion and contusions over his left eye brow. He had trouble recalling the collision and was hospitalized overnight as a precautionary measure. He will be held out of the Orioles' line-ups for at least two days.

Aaron Leads League in Grand Slams

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hank Aaron has hit more grand-slam homers than any other active major leaguer, but the four-run blasts come so rare even for the Atlanta slugger that he couldn't remember when he hit his 10th.

"I don't remember whether I hit one last year or not," Aaron said after his bases-loaded clout ignited the Braves' 13-5 conquest of Houston Tuesday night.

The third-inning shot, 423 feet into the center field stands, was the 11th grand-slam of Aaron's career, breaking him out of a tie for the active player's lead with Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs.

Aaron added a two-run shot in the eighth inning, giving him the National League lead in homers with 20 for the season. "I think maybe I hit a grand-slam against Pittsburgh last year, but I'm not sure," Aaron said. "I don't keep up with those things."

A check of the records showed that the 10th four-run blow by Aaron was June 8, 1966, against the New York Mets, when he also hit a two-run homer.

"Homers come like that, in streaks," said Aaron, who probably will be named to the National League All-Star team for the 13th straight year.

"You don't get very many chances for grand-slam homers, that's why even the good hitters have so few in their career," Aaron said. "I imagine I only come up four or five times a season with the bases loaded."

Told that he still has less than half of the all-time high of 23 set by the late Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, Aaron said "I'll never catch him. There's no way I could get that many. There just isn't enough opportunities."

Aaron's two homers and an infield single boosted his batting average to .327 and gave him 53 runs batted in, one behind Houston's Jim Wynn.

Act Proves Profitable for Pirates

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Before the game, the Pittsburgh Pirates put on an act for Walter Matthau and Jack Lemmon. During the game, they put on an act worthy of Abbott and Costello.

The first act proved more profitable. At least several of the Pirates earned $100 each for it. They didn't get anything for the second act except a lot of confusion and a 5-2 loss to the New York Mets.

In the pre-game festivities, the Pirates and Mets acted out a triple play for a scene in the movie, "The Odd Couple," which stars Matthau as a sloppy sports writer and Lemmon as his roommate who is obsessed with cleanliness.

In the scene, Bill Mazeroski—subbing for Roberto Clemente who rejected the $100 role—hits into the triple play.

In the game, the bizarre festivities centered around the part of the Pirate lineup that followed Mazeroski, the No. 5 hitter in the batting order.

In less than 20 minutes of games San Francisco blanked St. Louis 6-0, Atlanta clobbered Houston 13-5, Los Angeles whipped Cincinnati 9-0 and Philadelphia stopped Chicago 4-2.

In the American League Chicago beat Baltimore 5-0, Boston edged Minnesota 3-2, Cleveland thumped Detroit 8-1, Kansas City walloped New York 10-2 before losing 2-1 and Washington defeated California 9-4.

The odd incident in the Pirate-Met game came in the third inning after Jose Pagan cut the New York lead to 5-2 with a two-run double. As Jim Pagliaroni stepped into the batter's box, Mets Manager Wes Westrum emerged from the dugout.

"That man batted out of turn," Westrum told plate umpire Al Barlick.

"He did?" Barlick asked, somewhat surprised.

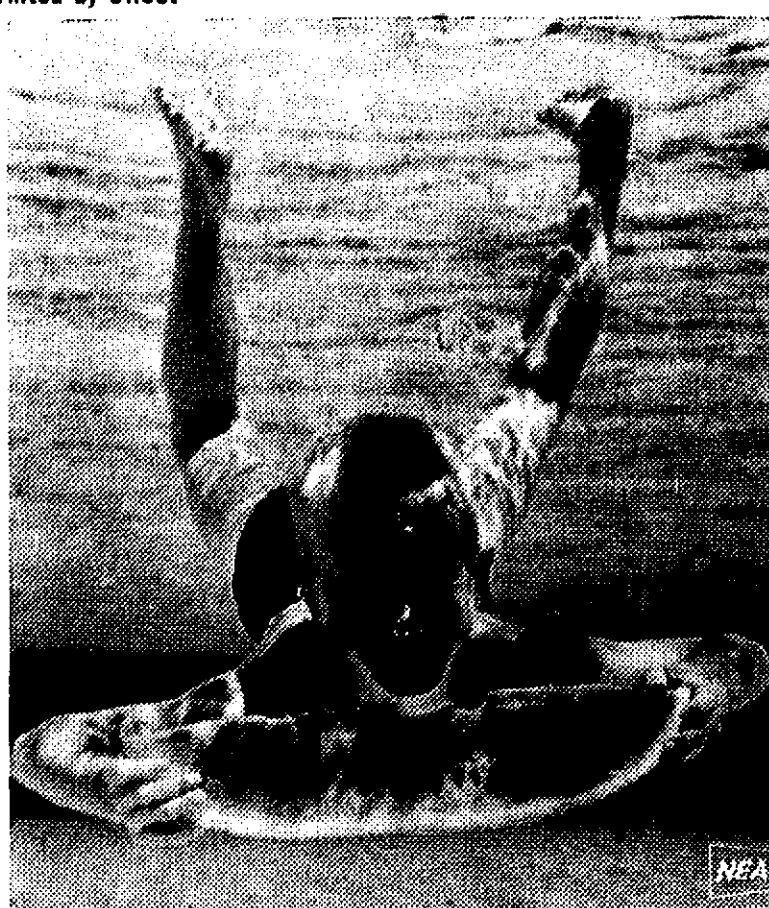

"Yes," Westrum coolly replied. Indeed Pagan had batted out of turn. So had Gene Alley, who preceded Pagan with the second out in the inning.

As the puzzle became unraveled, the participants learned that in the official line-up handed Barlick and Westrum before the game, Pagan was listed as the sixth batter and Alley the seventh. But in the line-up listed on the scoreboard, Alley was No. 6 and Pagan No. 7.

And, unfortunately for the Pirates, they were following the scoreboard even though the correct, official line-up was posted in their dugout.

How did the scoreboard happen to be wrong? It seems a Pirate broadcaster asked Walker before the game for his line-up, and Walker reeled off—as it turned out, incorrectly—a batting order with Pagan following Alley.

"There were six million people asking me for my line-up," Walker said afterward. "I'll never give it out that way again."

Jones Thinks Auto Club Act Unfair

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Race driver Parnelli Jones declared Tuesday the United States Auto Club acted unfairly in adopting a new formula for gas turbines such as the one which almost powered him to victory in the recent Indianapolis 500-mile classic.

Jones said he volunteered to testify before the USAC in its lengthy study of the controversial Turbocar. But, he said, despite his experience in the car, as well as vast experience with almost every other type of racing car, he was not invited to appear at the USAC sessions in Indianapolis, Ind.

"I have no ax to grind. I've driven the car. I've been paid," Jones said. His remarks came when the car, the STP Paxton Turbocar owned and built by Andy Granatelli, was placed on public display, in the first of national showings at Jones' tire agency here.

USAC's action, announced in Indianapolis Monday, restricts the air intake area from 25 to 15 inches and cuts the horsepower from 600 to 480. Jones reiterated that horse power was not the factor. He pointed out that the other cars at Indy were faster than his on the straightaways and into the turns, but his vehicle by its hand.

U.S. Player Aims for 2nd Upset

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Charlie Pasarell, America's dark horse at Wimbledon, was aiming today for his second big upset victory in three days.

The 23-year-old tennis star from Santee, P.R., knocked out reigning champion Manuel Santana of Spain in the first round Monday. This time he was to face Bob Hewitt, the powerful Australian who is now a member of South Africa's Davis Cup team.

Hewitt is unseeded, but is one of the fancied players here following South Africa's Davis Cup triumph over France in the semifinals of European Zone B Davis Cup competition. Hewitt shared South Africa's singles with Cliff Drysdale.

Two more Americans—Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., faced tough second-round matches today. Both had a chance to upset the form book and boost the United States' sagging reputation after a humiliating Davis Cup defeat by Ecuador.

Richey was to play Tony Roche, Australian left-hander who is the No. 4 seed.

Riessen was paired against the eighth-seeded Jan Leschly of Denmark.

Meanwhile, as the fans got over the shock of Santana's early defeat they were asking one big question—Can anyone stop Roy Emerson?

The wiry 30-year-old Australian is going for his third Wimbledon title in four years—and he has one of the easiest draws of any of the seeded players. Emerson was seeded second, after Santana.

Clarke Sets New Mark in 5,000 Meters

VAESTERAAS, Sweden (AP) — Ron Clarke, Australia's durable track star, set a world record of 8:19.8 here Tuesday night. Now he plans to attempt to break his world mark of 3:16.6 for the 5,000 meters at Stockholm next week.

Clarke, a lean 29-year-old Aussie who was the first to crack the 28-minute barrier for the 10,000 meters and the 13-minute barrier for the three miles, was surprised after he learned of his record time in the two mile.

"Really?" he exulted. "It's fantastic. Of course I tried for a new world record, but I did not think I could manage it after some stomach ache earlier in the day." He blew kisses to the crowd of 5,000 and started a triumphant jog around the track.

Vanished Rocky Mound Tavern a Reputed Den of Murderers

Crime Rampant on Old Camden Pike in Bygone Century

Wealthy Guests Disappeared, Tavern Garden Kept Freshly Plowed

A BURIED TREASURE

But Latter-Day Posse Put End to Daring Band of Train Robbers

The house of Clay Monts at Rocky Mound is more than 100 years old.

About three miles east of Hope, on what was once the famous old Washington and Camden Pike, is the Hamlet of Rocky Mound. This little town attracted much attention during the early eighties because of the mysteries and crimes allegedly occurring in and around it.

The famous rocky mound, from which the place gets its name, is about half a mile from the town. This huge mound rises sentinel-like out of the surrounding country and is of a peculiar formation. It is composed of sandrock, of which there is none anywhere near this spot. On the southeast side of the hill there is a jagged scar as though someone blasted it away, or, as one geologist said, it might have been a gas explosion.

Clay Monts, of Hope, is living in one of the first houses built by the early settlers over a hundred years ago. This old house built of double logs, held together with double pins is still intact. It was built by J. R. Mouser's people when they first came to Hempstead county.

A Strange Tavern

Just north of Mr. Monts' home across the creek, stood an old tavern that was a favorite stopping place of the rich planters on their way to and from Camden to their plantation.

The tavern was operated by an old man, his wife and their two sons. It soon became evident that all was not as it should be with this family and they were getting rich much faster than their trade warranted. The people began to notice that some of the wealthy guests that stopped at this tavern would disappear and their fine saddle horses would reappear later in other hands. Also, it became conspicuous that the garden of the inn was always freshly plowed although nothing ever grew in it. Naturally everyone concluded that these wealthy people were being robbed and murdered, and the old innkeeper was hoarding the spoils. However, there was no conclusive evidence so judgment had to be left to speculation.

Finally the old man died, apparently leaving everything to his wife and this seemed to increase the obvious hard feelings between the mother and two sons. It was told that the mother, in order to prevent her boys from getting the money had buried a good deal of it. Later she passed away, evidently, to judge by the following events, without disclosing the secret of the hidden treasure. Anyway, on the day of her funeral both boys appeared at the grave bloody and battered from fighting, in a short time these two sons left the country and so far as any of the old settlers know, they have never been heard of since.

Dig for Treasure

The story of buried treasure rapidly spread, attracting scores of people from all parts of the country. Some told that the money was buried in a huge Indian mound near the old Tavern. One man bought the mound and plowed a trench clear through the middle of it with a yoke of oxen. However, if he or anyone else ever profited from their search the news has never been made public.

After the old tavern was deserted some of the curious investigated the place and from their finding this is the explanation that has been accepted concerning the crimes committed there. They tell that when an intended victim was decided upon he was ushered into the dining room and seated at the table in a chair which was placed directly over a trap door. This door was operated by a lever located near a member of the family. At the appointed time the person near the lever worked it opening the door and dropping the unfortunate guest into a dug well. If the fall did not kill him the victim was finished off in other ways. After he was robbed the body was buried in the garden which was plowed thus erasing all traces of the grave.

Since Mr. Monts has cultivated his fields that were near the spot where the tavern stood, he has plowed up human bones. He apparently has been cultivating the old garden spot which served such a gruesome purpose in the early days of the county.

J. R. Mouser recounts an interesting event that occurred when he was just a boy living in this same old place.

A Train Robbery

One afternoon he and his parents noticed three riders pass their home, ride down to the water-tank by the railroad, dismount, tie their horses, and walk back up the road toward Hope.

It was later learned that these three men came to Hope, boarded a north-bound passenger train and, getting the drop on the brakemen and conductor in the last coach, forced them to accompany them through the entire train, robbing each coach as they came to it. When they reached the engine they forced the engineer to halt the train while they made their getaway. However, this was where they made their slip, for, instead of halting the train right at the water-tank where their horses were tied, the train was not stopped until it was some distance farther on. In order to make a quick break the robbers were forced to bury part of their loot in the creek bottom.

Old Johnny Whitesides, who was on the train at the time of the hold-up, got off and immediately organized a posse, which stayed on the out-laws trail. Bob Bridewell was present when the robbers were convicted and sentenced.

While it is not an established fact, the story is told of an old Hardshell Baptist preacher and his two sons-in-law, who got a diving rod and went to the bottom one night to dig for the treasure. After digging until they were exhausted the old man suggested they live the spot and return later after they were more rested. This was agreed to and the trio departed to get some rest. Evidently the old preacher had been the last one to dig, for it is believed he returned immediately and got some of the treasure. For when the sons-in-law came back to the spot there was the imprint showing where a box had been lifted out. Later the father-in-law had more wealth than his preaching would enable him to acquire.

but those who go to see him will find him full of memories of the past, and he will entertain one or hours; Judge J. K. Young, who was our Circuit Judge in the early days of Hope and after his time of Judge was out, practiced law here. His home used to be on the south side of the St. L. & I. R. Ry., just south of the Hope Lumber Company; J. White Brazell, C. A. Atkins, W. H. Huddleston, John A. Sullivan and a host of others, too numerous to mention in the space reserved for this chapter.

There is a notable characteristic of the members of this church, which wish to recommend to members of other churches, and that is the study of the Bible. If you talk along religious lines with a member of the Christian church you will be surprised to find the fact that he knows the Bible and many of them can quote from memory many passages. In this rushing money-mad age, we are prone to neglect the religious education of our children, being content to leave it to the Sunday school, and that school that requires the memory to be filled with the chapters and verses of the Bible, is laying the foundation of fine Christian character. The study of the word of God should be put as a text book in all of our public schools, as well as in our Sunday schools, if we wish to get the highest standard of citizenship.

Chapter 13

The Bridewell School

During the year 1874, a Baptist preacher named Willis built the first school house in Hope, Ark. He bought lots 2 and 3 in block 51, which block has its west front on Walnut street, and its east front on Hazel street. The school building was erected on lots 2 and 3, which form the south corner of the block. It was a two-story frame, having the north end divided into two rooms, 20x20 down stairs, making sufficient room for the family as a dwelling. The west portion was divided into school rooms. The building was about 100 feet long. Mr. Willis opened his school in the fall of the year 1875, dying before the end of that year. The property fell into the hands of a daughter, Miss Cora Willis, from whom, in December, 1875, C. A. Bridewell rented the property. In looking for a school room, a few nights since found the written contract made with Miss Cora Willis at the time.

On the first day of January, 1876 I opened the school and continued to teach to the years 1876, 1877, 1878 and 1879. During the first few months I had no assistant, but the school began to fill up, so I wrote to Miss Mollie Malone, who had taught with me at Camden, Ark., and who was teaching in Texas, and asked her to come to help me. She gave up her position at Camden and came to Hope. We two managed to conduct the school for two years from the beginning, when it became necessary to have more help, so Mrs. Bell, the wife of Judge Bell, and mother of Ike, Jessie and Maggie Bell, three of my old scholars, now living in Hope, and Mrs. Wallis, wife of Judge W. M. Wallis and mother of Mrs. Robert Penny, Walter Wallis and Tom Wallace, two of whom went to school to me. Mrs. Penney and Wallace now living in Hope, and Tom Wallace a big railroad man in the employ of the Iron Mountain Ry. Co. While teaching at that place I bought my first real estate in Hope, lots 1 and 5 in the same block on which the school building stood. One of them, No. 1, block 51, I turned over to the contractor, in part payment for the building of my present home. The other No. 5 I sold to a mill company for lumber, which I gave to Mr. Cheatnam to go into his dwelling.

At the end of four years of my teaching in the Willis building, the Special School District of Hope had been formed and I was employed by the School Board to teach the first public school in Hope. The Presbyterians had sold their church building which stood at the northwest corner of the present school block, on which is the High School building, and I taught the public school in that old church building, having with me some of my old teachers. Before the end of that school year, 1880-81, I was elected Mayor of Hope, and in connection with duties of the office of Mayor, I resumed the practice of law.

Knowing that my former scholars would like to preserve a roll of students, which I prepared for our first reunion October 25, 1916, I append herewith the roll. I know it is far from a complete list, yet it is as perfect as I could make it, from the material I had, and from the memories of those who were nearly grown at the time I taught.

Hoping that God will permit us to have other reunions and that He will bless abundantly those who are still on this side of the River, I present to you our school roll:

Chapter 14

Biography

Judge Alfred Holt Carrigan was born in Alamance county, North Carolina, on the 15th day of April, 1828, and is at this writing, 88 years, 6 months and 16 days of age. His parents were of Scotch ancestry and the judge received the training usually given in Presbyterian families of his childhood days, and there was imbedded in his character that love and respect for them as the result of his early training and God has blessed him with long life, in fulfillment of the promise. His father, William A. Carrigan, was born in Georgia in 1792, and his mother, Nancy M. (Holt) Carrigan, was born in North Carolina in 1809. She died there in 1841 and her husband came to Hempstead county, Ark., where he died in 1880. The Judge's father had been a cotton manufacturer, a merchant and a farmer and with his brother had been in North Carolina, which they operated from 1837 to he moved to Arkansas in 1852. The Judge's grandfather served in the Revolutionary War. He was a farmer by occupation, a Presbyterian and was one of the two laymen who was at the organization of Orange Presbytery, the oldest and one of the largest in the Southern Presbyterian church. The Judge's maternal grandfather, Hon. Michael Holt, was born in North Carolina, spent his life as a planter and served his state in the Legislative Halls for several terms. The Judge was the oldest of the family of five sons and one daughter. His early training was on the farm and he has devoted all his whole life to that calling and he has been successful in making a good living at it and has accumulated quite a fortune, and in his old age has the means to make him comfortable.

His early schooling was in the ordinary country schools of that day, and North Carolina was noted then and is now for her great interest in the education of her boys and girls. After his preparatory training, he entered the State University at Chapel Hill, N. C., where he took the regular course of four years, graduating with honors in 1850. In 1852 he came to Hempstead county, Ark., on a prospecting tour, and being satisfied with this country, he invested in farms for his father and brothers and returned to North Carolina to assist in moving the family to Arkansas. After getting settled and homes built, taking about three years to make all preparations, he returned to North Carolina and was married to Miss Mary Elizabeth Moore on the 25th day of September, 1855, and returned to Hempstead county. By this union there were born to him nine children, seven sons and two daughters. Dr. Samuel M. Carrigan, who died in Hope, Ark., in March, 1908; Hon. Alfred H. Carrigan, who graduated from the Arkansas State University at Fayetteville, and from the Law College at Lebanon, Tenn., and is now a successful lawyer of Wichita Falls, Texas, and served in that Judicial District as the Circuit Judge for several terms; Miss Mary Carrigan, now living with her brother in Hope; Adolphus Carrigan, now on the farm between Hope and Washington; Dr. Pickney Carrigan, living and practicing his profession in Hope, and who has earned quite a reputation here, in Mexico and St. Louis, Mo., as a surgeon; Miss Annie E. Carrigan, who died in Hope in February, 1906; William Carrigan, living now at Mineral Wells, Texas; John Carrigan, who died when 8 years of age, and Robert Carrigan, who died when ten months old. Mrs. Carrigan the mother, died in 1891.

Judge Carrigan is a part of the history not only of Hope, but of Hempstead county and the State of Arkansas. He has been prominent not in the farm life only, but in the political, civil and religious life of the town, county and state. The wife of James K. Jones Jr. was dwelling recently among the early records at Chapel Hill and found the name of Alfred H. Carrigan, as one of the contributors to purchase a very fine Bible for the Presbyterian church. In religion, he and his family followed in the steps of their ancestors and all have been loyal to the Presbyterian church. In civil life he has been a prominent factor and the progress of his splendid character has been made upon the people among whom he lived. In political life he has been prominent. As a young man he was a candidate for where Mr. Ike Bell has built a two-story apartment house.

A nice frame church building was erected on this lot and the congregation worshipped in it for nearly ten years. It was burned in October, 1893 and another building was erected at once. However the members soon saw that it would not be a great while before they would be surrounded by business houses, and they began to look for a new location.

Dr. H. J. P. Garrett had bought lots number 10, 11 and 12, in block number 12 as an investment, but when approached by the members of the church and asked to let them have these lots for church purposes, he decided these lots at cash $350.00 to A. J. Anderson and C. A. Atkins and they decided them to the church trustees: J. W. Brazell, A. J. Anderson, J. A. Sullivan and C. A. Atkins, December 3, 1902 and their successors in office.

The new church building was moved to its present location and lots No. 6, block 21 was sold to Mr. A. J. Anderson.

Adolphus Anderson secured a patent to W one half of N one-quarter, section 33 Township 12, S. Range 24 West, which was laid out in town lots. Patent dated, June 5, 1875, block No. 54 is included in this land. Mrs. M. J. Lee, wife of A. A. Lee secured from Anderson the lots 3 and 4 in block 54 and donated same to the Christian church for a parsonage, which present location was used for that purpose till the present location was secured.

On August 4, 1902, J. A. Sullivan, J. W. Brazell, Elders, and C. A. Atkins, and A. J. Anderson, Deacons, Trustees of the church sold to A. J. Anderson lots 3 and 4, in block No. 54 being all in same block and lots south of the dividing line between the North and South quarter of the East one-half Section 33 Township 12, Range 24 to the line of Sixth street.

On the northeast part of this present property the parsonage now used by their pastor was built and finished about the 24th day of May, 1904. On the West part of this property, in the year 1910 a large one story room was built to accommodate the overflow from their Sunday school. Right recently their property has been improved very much by a nice concrete sidewalk extending the length of the property on the East and South. Thus equipped they are prepared to wage the conflict which has come down to us from Adam's transgression.

When the church was organized in 1828 Mrs. M. J. Lee and husband advertised in one of their church newspapers, published in Texas for a preacher. A young, single man named H. Ab. Smith, one day presented himself to A. A. Lee in answer to the advertisement. At that time Mr. Lee was engaged in the mercantile business in a large one-story frame building, occupying the ground, which is now covered by the stores of Waddie Bros. and Ward & Key up to the little alley on the north. The name of the firm was Faulkner & Lee. Mr. Lee took the young man up to the depot and pointed to the other side of the North Division street, and said, "There is your home as long as you behave yourself." I have a horse, saddle and bridle and I want you to use your spare time from the Hope church in Mission work in the surrounding country. This preacher, Smith did preaching in several places, and organized a church at Sardis. He used Mr. Lee's horse to such advantage that it became known throughout the country as "The Mission Horse." Rev. H. Ab. Smith was the first preacher. He was followed by Rev. T. J. Shelton who served the church acceptably for one year, when he received a call to the church at Little Rock and was there for some years. Rev. Perkins came next and remained in the service for two years. He was followed by Rev. Kimbrough Ferguson. He served the church for one year. Rev. Granville Jones a native of the State of Arkansas, was the next preacher. He had quite a reputation as a temperance lecturer and remained only one year with this church, after which he resumed his work in the cause of prohibition.

His brother Rev. Arthur Jones came next and served the church for two years. He was also in the same work as his brother and was a great lecturer. Just before the Spanish-American war Rev. Wright preached one year for this church, when he was appointed chaplain of the Regiment, which joined and served as such during that war.

Rev. J. M. Ratcliff succeeded him. Besides his ministerial work, he conducted a newspaper for a time and was engaged in the mercantile business, with his son-in-law, Goff, who has been yard foreman for the Iron Mountain Ry. Co. for some years. Rev. Ratcliff served this church for two years and was a good preacher. Rev. Brendon, who was a widower, with several children, came next and served this church for two years, and was followed by Rev. Stanley, who remained for six or seven months, and was dismissed because of an unfavorable report had been received by the church. Rev. J. D. Davis served the church just before Stanley and remained two years. During the revival held at Boyett's cotton warehouse, by Major Cole, the Christian church had for its preacher Rev. C. L. Wilson, who remained for one year. He and the congregation did not work in harmony very well and he had to leave. Rev. Spurlock was the next preacher to serve this church for a year, when he resigned to devote himself to a hotel which he had bought. It was on the grounds where the Park Hotel now stands. It was a frame building and was burned and rebuilt and bought by the present owner of the Park Hotel.

Rev. U. M. Boudier was the next preacher and served the church during the year 1903 and 1904. He was followed by Rev. Percy G. Cross. He was a great preacher and is now doing splendid work as an evangelist, and having great success in his work. He served this church during the years 1907, 1908 and 1909. He was a fine preacher and did good work while here. Rev. B. E. Newton came next for the years 1910-1911 and 1912. He was a good preacher and did good work for the church while here. He became interested in the Knights of Luther, a society opposed to the Roman Catholic church and quit the position in this church to lecture in that cause. His home was here for some time after giving up this church. For a while the church was without a preacher. Then Rev. Thary was here for a year and he was succeeded by the present pastor, the Rev. James N. Thomas, who came to the church on the first day of September, 1915. It is the custom of this church to keep a preacher as long as he is acceptable to the congregation and is doing good work. Rev. Thomas is well liked by his people, as well as the other churches of Hope. He works in harmony with the other preachers and it is to be hoped that his stay among us will last for a long time.

It is also the policy of this church to elect its officers in church and Sabbath school to serve during the will and pleasure of the members and not for life terms, as some other churches do. When the present pastor came, there was a general reorganization and the following is the lineup of the church, the Sabbath school and societies:

Rev. James N. Thomas, pastor. Elders: George B. Corter, C. M. Richards, W. W. Duckett.

Deacons: J. F. Gorin, C. A. Neal, A. F. Annen, G. F. Shaw, J. A. Davis, Jewel Moore, A. C. Whitehurst, and Charles Bader.

Sabbath School: C. A. Neal, superintendent; Howell Myers, secretary; J. F. Gorin, treasurer; Miss Mary Carter, organist.

The school is graded and has the Cradle Roll Department, with a total enrollment of 150 scholars. A. C. Whitehurst, J. F. Gorin, C. M. Richards, Will Porter, John A. Sullivan, are some of those who have been superintendents of the Sunday school, in the past years.

Societies: The Ladies Aid Society, of which Mrs. W. W. Duckett is the president, does local work. The Woman's Missionary Society, of which Mrs. Belle Norwood is the president, is engaged in both Home and Foreign Mission.

The Senior Christian Endeavor Society is active along the lines laid down in the Rules and Regulations of the Society. Among the earliest members and officers we find the following: A. A. Lee and wife, Mrs. M. J. Lee, Marion Tyson, who was the first elder to serve this church. He married one of Joe McDonald's daughters. They moved first to Texas and now Mr. Tyson lives in California: A. J. Anderson, known to all his friends as "Uncle Andy" and at present is on the retired list due to old age and failing health.

History of Hope

the legislature. He was, at that time, an old line whig, the party of the great Henry Clay, of Kentucky, and at that time there was a political secret organization known as the "No Nottings," and the Judge had the courage to come out openly and stand for the principles advocated by that party. The time was 1856, and he was defeated. At the next election he was a candidate again for the State Senate and was elected and served four years. At the beginning of the Civil War he was a candidate for delegate to the State Secession Convention and at the first was opposed to a separation from the government. The Convention took a recess in February, and convened again in June, and when the final vote was taken, it was unanimous for secession.

The Judge went into the war as Lieutenant Colonel of the 20th Ark. Infantry. After a short service he caught the measles and came near to death and was invalided home. During the years 1866 and 1867 he was the County Judge of Hempstead county and was elected again for the years 1876 and 1877 and the records will show that he made his county one of her best judges. In 1884 he was again a candidate for the Legislature, with C. A. Bridgwell for his mate. Both were elected and served through the years 1885-1886. In all these political positions he was true to his people and rendered them faithful and valuable service.

After moving to Arkansas, one of his first investments was the purchase of the farm now being used by the county as a "poor farm," on which he lived for a while, then in Washington lot 1902, when he moved to Hope and built the home he now lives in. As a farmer, the judge, as was then and is now, devoted his talents to raising cotton, which he shipped to New Orleans by water, from Fulton, on the Red River, and from Camden, on the Ouachita River. The Judge and his wife at times would go on the steamer to New Orleans down these rivers, which, at that early day, were the ways to market for the farm products, there being no railroads in the state.

Judge Carrigan is the only one of his father's family now living. His brother, Wm. M., died during the Civil war; John M. was killed in the battle of Oak Hills; Robert A., a captain in the Civil war, died at Washington in 1877, and James E. was killed at the battle of Lovejoy Station, near Jonesboro, Ga.

For more than a year the Judge has been confined to his home, compelled thereto by sickness and a fall. In this affliction he has been uncompromising and receives his friends with a cheerfulness that is wonderful, and he enjoys the conversations, showing the most vivid memory of the incidents that have crossed his pathway.

For forty years or more the writer has been a friend of Judge Carrigan and was his roommate while we were members of the Legislature, and I have found him ever a man, and with

Browning, feel he is
"One who never turned his back.
But marched breast forward.
Never doubted clouds would break.
Never dreamed, that right were worsted.
Wrong would triumph:
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better.
Slept to wake."
And with Whittier he can say:
"And so beside the silent sea,
I wait the muffled oar:
No harm from him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.
I know not where his islands lift
Their bristled palms in air:
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond his love and care."

Chapter 13

The Newspapers

The history of the newspapers of Hope, is, in a great measure, the history of Claude McCorkle, and while it is not his intention, at this time, to write a history of his life, yet it will be impossible for me to write this chapter without frequent mention of him. I wish to give him also credit for the use of his memory, which is as vivid as when these events occurred.

The first newspaper ever started in Hope was "The Star of Hope," Col. Anson W. Hobson was the owner and editor, who had moved from Camden, Ark., and had brought the printing office with him. He came to Hope in the fall of 1873, soon after the railroad got here and brought with him R. L. Whyte, generally known as Bob, for his printer and publisher. Bob had a considerable family and lived just across the street east of the school house, on South Hazel St. Col. Hobson was a doctor also and did some practice. His office was in the rear end of Sam Bracy's Drug Store on Front street in Block 29 near the middle of Front Row. His printing office was in a small building north of A. Kyle's dwelling, about where the Oil Mill's cotton gin is now. When Sam Bracy moved his drug store to the building on Elm street, then on the same ground where Battle & Croshaw now have a drug store, Col. Hobson moved his printing office into the building vacated by Sam Bracy. Claude McCorkle moved from Camden, Ark., to Hope, and worked for Col. Hobson some months, doing his first work after learning his trade.

Col. A. W. Hobson had been a celebrated cavalry officer in the Civil war, as Colonel of the 3rd Arkansas Cavalry. His regiment and the 8th Texas Cavalry fought together and became noted in both armies. When he started his paper in Hope he was getting well along in age and had left much of his work to his printers, yet the Star of Hope was a live-wire and Col. Hobson continued to issue it until the second Court House election, when noted as one of the foremost editors in the State of Arkansas, he was induced by the people of Washington to move there and assist Ed Givens, the editor of the Southwestern Press, in the Court House fight. During his time away from Hope the material of the Star of Hope was unused and the paper suspended. This out was was finally sold to Charlie Adamson, who moved it down to Magnolia, Ark., and thus for a time died the first paper to be published in Hope. However, it was brought to life in 1899 by Claude McCorkle and has been published regularly up to the present date, and a complete file of the issues, without a break, for the past seventeen years, is preserved in the office of the paper.

Claude McCorkle can be found there six days in the week rounding out a life well spent in his calling. The second paper established in Hope had as its sponsors Col. Jim Tom Story and Charley Blackburn. The former moved to Hope from Magnolia in 1874, just after the railroad was run into Texarkana; the latter came to Hope soon after from Homer, La., and they went into the business together. Col. Story bought himself a home on the Block No. 16, Beard's Addition, the dwelling fronting the Iron Mountain track, on Front street, near the dwelling occupied now by Mrs. Williams, built by S. P. Brundidge. Charley Blackburn lived with his father, Col. Blackburn, who occupied a dwelling about where is now the dwelling of R. O. Bridgwell. The name of their paper was "The Hope City Times." The printing office was in the upstairs of the New Little building, which was about the middle of the front row on Block 29, space now occupied by John Moses' transfer office and store room. The paper was a neutral, independent one, but supported the Democratic ticket all the time. They published a semi-weekly in the busy seasons, an published also a hand-around-sheet, giving markets, sales, etc., a sheet 12x18, which was distributed by Col. Jim Tom Story in person. During the life of this paper Col. Story printed a book of 120 pages, giving the advantages and resources of Hope, several thousand copies of which were sent broadcast throughout the United States, and a great, or the greatest, work in putting Hope on the map, and starting her to her present greatness. The paper was a real booster and contained articles each week lauding Hope. It also made gallant fight for the Court House removal. The hand-around sheet showed that for the years 1875 and 1876 there were 30,000 bales of cotton shipped from Hope. This sheet also showed that Hicks & Thompson were the biggest buyers, with J. R. Giles, Jake Powell, George Taylor and McNeal close followers.

This paper also boasted the Beasley railroad out to the town of Washington and into the black lands, and Col. Story and his wife were the first to ride on this new railroad. The paper was printed on a Washington hand press and Blackburn did the rolling. They had an old fashioned Ruggles job press (none now in use), and a subscription list of 1300 subscribers. Judge Calvin Horvey was their first one; Newt Little fourth; Pap Kyle third; Walter Shiver fourth; and Rich Giles fifth. Sam White was the first advertiser and Hicks & Thompson the second. The Hope City Times did the town printing.

Story and Blackburn published this paper for about three years and then sold it to Claude McCorkle. Col. Story moved to Hot Springs and went to work with Charley Matthews, and also bought an interest in the Malvern Meteor with Sam Emmerson. He is now living in Oklahoma and owns and edits the Bokchito News. Charley Blackburn moved to Little Rock and, I think, is still living there.

Claude McCorkle changed the name of the paper to Hempstead County Record, and he continued to publish this paper till about 1903. Some time before this, Col. A. W. Hobson had moved to Hope and wishing to engage again in the business he bought the Record from Claude McCorkle. He did not publish the paper but a few months before he died. He was buried in Cave Hill cemetery. It seems that while he was living in Washington he formed some connection with the Eakin boys, for Julian and Percy Eakin took charge of Hobson's paper, changed the name to "The Pine Torch," and continued the paper for one year and sold it to Fred J. Dean and R. F. Kennedy, who were Republican and they printed the only Republican paper ever issued in Hope. This paper did not last long, for lack of support. Both men were smart enough, and B. F. Kennedy had a winning way about him that made many friends, and succeeded in captivating one of our fine girls, Miss Lydia Rainey, to whom he was married. After a few months of struggle, in the effort to make a Republican paper go in Hope it was suspended and the outfit sold to Joe Pollard, who moved the material to Magnolia, Ark.

After the second Court House election a new paper was started, by the Lowry brothers, John, Ah and James, named "The Hope News." These brothers were engaged in the practice of law, being the only firm insured then in Hope selling real estate, collecting accounts, etc., with an office about where the sample room of the Barlow Hotel is now. They published a live newspaper for three or four years, and then sold it to Withers and Johnson. At that time Dr. H. R. Withers, one of the ablest ministers of the Methodist church in Arkansas, was the pastor of the Hope church, and was his son who bought from the Lowry brothers Withers, and Johnson changed the name of the paper to "The Telegraph." They failed to make it go and began to dicker with Claude McCorkle for a sale to him. At that time C. A. Bridgwell was the attorney at Hope for the St. Louis Type Foundry and held a lien on the paper outfit and when he required a settlement of the matter a trade was made with Claude McCorkle. This trade was consummated, the paper was not issued, and for several weeks Hope was without a newspaper. McCorkle changed the name of this paper to "The Hope Mercury" and made a live paper of it, doing, as he has always done, the very best for the upbuilding of Hope. In 1884 he sold the outfit to James H. Betts, who changed the name to "The Hope Gazette." This is the paper that still lives and has done much for the City of Hope. Those who remember James H. Betts, know that Hope never had a better friend or greater booster for everything which was for the advancement of the town, and though he conducted the paper for a few years, he made it tell for a paper is worth. In 1890 he sold out to J. L. Tullis, who had organized a corporation to take over the paper. During the days of Tullis' management of the Gazette we had some of the hottest political fights ever pulled off in Hempstead county and he was a champion of the Democratic party, worthy of any man's steel. About 1894 the paper was sold to Col. W. W. Folsom, who continued its issue till his death recently. While Col. Folsom was a Democrat and his paper always upheld that party's principles, yet he was an independent thinker, and never hesitated to stand for the right and to denounce the wrong. For over twenty years he went in and out among us, leaving an impress for good which will show in the lives of many who are left. He made the Gazette a clean paper in every respect. One feature which appealed to many of his subscribers was the printing each week of a chapter from God's Holy Book. During his time with the Gazette he printed the whole of the New Testament. After his death his widow sold the paper to Purkins & Gates, the proprietors of the Arkansas Evening Herald, and they are now issuing the Hope Gazette as a weekly and are continuing it fully up to the standard.

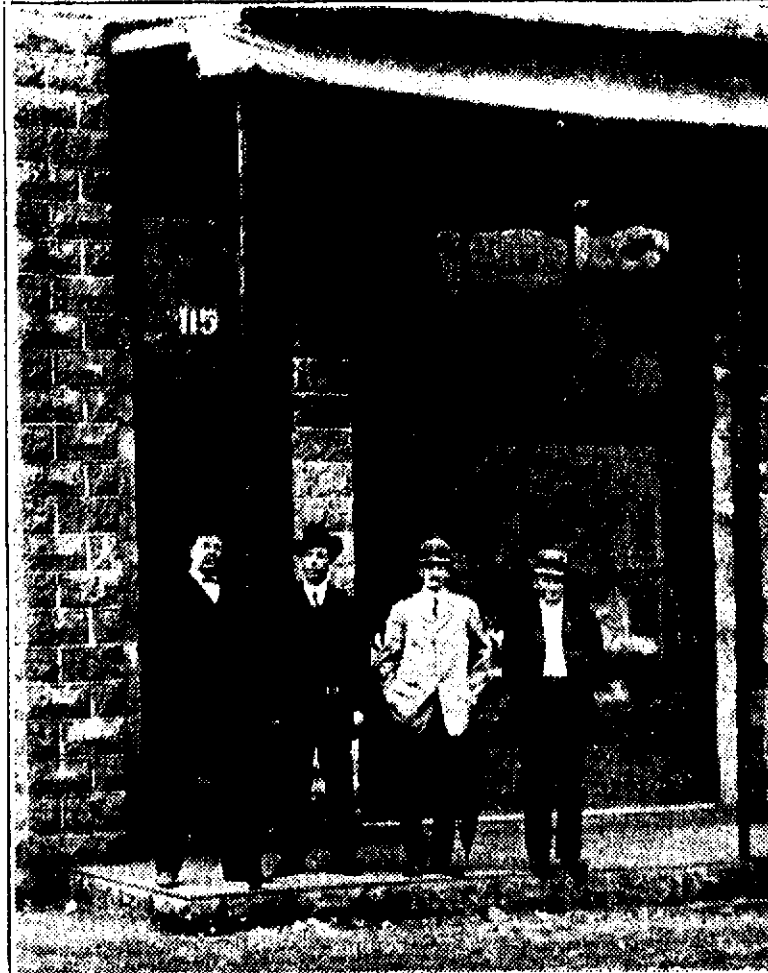

The foregoing contains a brief history of some of the papers that have been published in Hope since its location and which had much to do with the upbuilding of our city. The thing most lacking in this line is a stronger and better support of these great agencies.

Chapter 16

The Churches

Patrick Donnelly came to Hope with the Cairo and Fulton railroad, being a section boss on the work. Soon after the track layers and graders reached the section crossing Prairie Delton, Donnelly discovered that there was some government land on this section and he left the camp quietly and made a trip to Camden in the Land office. He succeeded in getting possession of the East Half of the Northwest Quarter (E 1/2 NW 1/4) of Section Thirty-three (33) in Township 12 South, Range 24 West, 80 acres of land which lies in the very heart of Hope. He had this land laid out in blocks and lots and among others, Block 59, just north of the present dwelling now owned and occupied by Mr. A. L. Betts. In said block, on the West side of Elm and South Third streets, a big hearted Irishman got apart the whole block, and out of his own means built and donated to the Catholic church a very neat church building. At that period in the history of Hope, Donnelly's patent being dated June 15, 1875, there were very few members of this church living in Hope, and there was no resident Priest. Services were held on occasion by visiting Priests, but for years there was no increase in membership. The great tornado which swept Hempstead county and Hope, Ark., on the 30th day of May, 1892, blew this church building down and it was some time afterward that Pat Donnelly had it repaired and erected again, and it is my recollection that this was done at his own expense. A second tornado destroyed the church and it was rebuilt and for many years there no church building and services in Hope. The Protestant Episcopal church owned Lot 3 in Block 22, this having been donated to them by Allen and Marquard, but desiring to build at another location, they, by and through Judson T. West and S. A. Knighton, wardens, and Moses H. Barlow, Geo. R. Ruffin and Robert E. Ryan as vestrymen of St. Mark's church, trustees for the said church, for the consideration of $1000 sold said Lot 3 to the Right Reverend Edward Fitzgerald, commonly known as the Bishop of Little Rock, Ark., and his heirs and assigns. The deed to this property is dated July 7, 1902, and the lot is located at the Northeast corner of the Band Park. There was a nice church building already on the lot and for about seven years the Catholic congregation worshipped at that place. Block No. 59, which had been deeded ed by Patrick Donnelly, on January 21, 1875 to Edward Fitzgerald, known as the Bishop of Little Rock, Ark., was sold, part on July 11, 1899, to J. P. Hervey, and part on July 2, 1890, to Mrs. Katherine Forney. There was another piece of property which belonged to this church, but was never used for church purposes. It is Lot No. 9, in Block No. 37, on the corner of Elm and South Third street, just north across the street from the Episcopal church building. This lot was sold by Edward Fitzgerald to Mrs. Frances M. Black, March 24, 1902. Desiring a location for their church near the School of the Sisters of Mercy, Lots number 9, 10, 11, 12, in Block number 19 were purchased in Brookwood Addition, from L. A. Foster, and Eliza Foster, his wife, and the Lot 3, in Block 22, where the frame church stood, was sold. These lots are situated on East Third Avenue, just East of the home of Mr. Walker and just West of the home of K. G. McRae.

On the west end of these lots a very handsome brick church building has been erected, and a very comfortable one-story frame dwelling for the Priest, built just south of the church building. This property was bought on June 22, 1911. Since the building of the school and church buildings, a good number of members from other parts of Arkansas and from many of the states have come to make Hope and Hempstead county their home. These new comers have settled partly inside the corporate limits, and partly on farms near Hope, that they might have the benefits of both school and church, and they constitute some of our best farmers and citizens.

A number of sisters, who for many years had conducted a school and were members of Annie Mark's Society, came to Hope, hunting for a new location for their school. This band of Sisters was headed by Sister Thomason, president of the Society. After several visits and examination of several pieces of property which were offered to them, Sister Thomason bought from C. P. Bridgwell and Leila Bridgwell, his wife, Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12 in Block No. 2, in Brookwood Addition, which is all of said Block except Lots 7 and 8, which belong to Jesse N. Riley, on which is his dwelling. The deed to these Lots was made to Eleanor Kearney (Sister Thomason) and was dated the 24th day of July, 1909. Eleanor Kearney then deeded the property to St. Rose Academy on July 11, 1910. St. Rose Academy, to secure the grantor, executed a deed of trust to Eleanor Kearney, dated July 12, 1910. As soon as the property was bought, the contract was let for the erection of the buildings now on said Block and a school was opened as soon as the buildings were ready for occupation. This property was bought during the $80,000 hoarding period in Hope's history and those in charge of said scheme agreed and did give these Sisters help in the construction of their buildings. St. Rose Academy was a well conducted school and continued for over one year, or until August, 1911. On August 3, 1911, Eleanor Kearney executed a Release Deed to St. Rose Academy, and the St. Rose Academy sold the property to the Sisters of Mercy of the Female Academy, of Little Rock, Ark. These Sisters have used the buildings part of the time for a sanitarium, and part of the time for school purposes, and during this year, 1916, are conducting a very successful school. The buildings are located on the north half of the block, and are built of brick, and the grounds have been improved and concrete walks put down.

A good many noted cases have been treated in this sanitarium and the patients have come away singing the praises of the Good Sisters who have been the trained nurses, as well as the teachers, when the school is open. A good many girls from other towns and places have come, as boarders, to this school and have gone away very much pleased with the instruction given them there.

The church has a regular pastor stationed here, who came to the church from his home in Canada. He is still a young man, full of energy, and very pleasant in his manner and conversation. His name is Father McGrath, P. P., and conducts the regular services set forth in their form of church government.

Stephenson File Goes Back to '38

Records Sale of 7 Negro Slaves—and Prospectus of Hempstead 1873

Roy Stephenson, of Hope, has some old papers and records such as the bill of sale of the estate of Martha Bradley, February 10, 1838. In this are listed seven negro slaves ranging in price from $20 to $1,600.

Another item in this collection is a letter from E. M. Lowe, who was the overseer and agent for Governor James S. Conway, to the governor. It is addressed to His Excellency, James S. Conway, Little Rock, Ark., and is dated May 7, 1839. In this letter he relates as he phrases it, "The melancholy news of the death of Mrs. Eliza Bradley," who was one of the very early pioneers.

There is a bill of sale of the personal property belonging to the estate of John B. Borden, made by James H. Cantley, January 1, 1832. Among the articles sold are: 1 trunk and contents, 1 pair saddle bags, and iron, shovel and tongs, Greenfield on Evidence—2 volumes, Raccoon's Criminal Evidence, 2 volumes, Plutarch's lives.

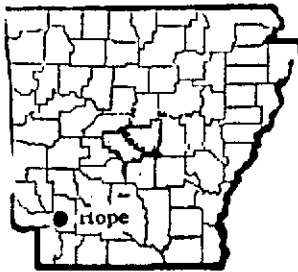

Another document reads: "Hiram Smith Plaintiff vs. Alexander S. Walker—James Gibson—This is an action of debt founded on a writing obligatory for the sum of One hundred and twenty dollars debt. Damages One hundred dollars and ball is not required."

"Attest—Ringo & Conway attys. for the Plaintiff."

The most amusing and interesting article in this old collection is a copy of "Borden's Monthly Register," dated 1873. Some of the advertisements read like this:

"Stuart, Carrigan & Co., Dry Goods and Family Supplies.
"H. Lazarus, Dry Goods &c.
"Kile & Co., Ice Merchants.
"Charles Patton, Merchant Tailor,
"A. Kile, Tinner.
"V. O. McMonigle, Gunsmith and dealer in Fire Arms.
"Louis Latourrette, confectionaries.
"W. P. Hart, Drugs, Chemicals & Paints.

This paper also lists four doctors and eleven lawyers. Under churches and societies, the Debonair Reading Club is mentioned, with Miss Jennie Capron, president.

Debt Ceiling Measure to Johnson

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent to the White House for President Johnson's certain signature a bill to raise the national debt limit on Saturday to $358 billion, highest ceiling in history.

The measure, which Johnson asked for and is certain to sign into law by Friday — when the current $336-billion temporary ceiling expires — would raise the limit another $7 billion to $365 billion on July 1, 1968.

In practical terms, the proposed over-all increase in the ceiling represents the amount of cash it would take to buy 9 million cars costing $3,000 each or more than 1.2 million homes priced at $22,000 each.

The Senate cleared the legislation to the White House late Tuesday on a 60-30 vote after an afternoon of debate in which administration forces narrowly beat off several amendments. Had any of these been adopted, the bill would have been forced into conference with the House, causing uncertainty as to whether it could have gone to Johnson before Congress begins its 10-day July 4th recess Thursday.

The measure will bring an immediate $22-billion increase in the debt ceiling.

The temporary $336-billion limit expires Friday midnight. Without the bill, the ceiling would revert on Saturday to the permanent debt limit of $285 billion, established in 1959.

This would mean the government would be insolvent, since the actual debt will be an estimated $327 billion as of Saturday.

The full $80-billion increase in the permanent ceiling provided by the bill when the $365-billion limit goes into effect in mid-1969 is the second largest in history. During World War II, Congress voted an $85-billion hike.

The bill cleared Tuesday apparently marks the end, for at least a time, of the practice of passing successive temporary debt limit increases. Congress has acted on as many as three of these in one year.

Incorporation Petition Filed

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A petition for incorporation, filed by 166 residents of the Bethel Heights area in the southeast part of Benton County, was granted Tuesday by Benton County Judge Sherman Kinyon.

Incorporation of the area would prevent its annexation by Springdale, which has tried unsuccessfully a number of times to annex the area.

Springdale's previous efforts were thwarted because of a state law forbidding annexation across county lines. A bill allowing annexation across county lines was passed by the 1967 legislature and becomes effective July 1.

Violation of Stock Ad

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Sen. Virgil Fletcher of Benton, one of the backers of the Arkansas Dairy Commission, said Tuesday a suit may be filed challenging the ballot title on a referendum concerning the proposed commission.

The courts have ruled that the ballot title and popular name of initiated or referendum acts or amendments must clearly reflect the content of the measure. Secretary of State Kelly Bryant recently received petitions containing 57,392 signatures calling for a vote on the proposed commission. Bryant said about 24,000 signatures are needed to get the act on the 1968 general election ballot.

The late Philip Hal Sims didn't believe in grand slam bidding unless he could count 13 tricks in no-trump. In his day there was a lot of sound reasoning in back of that theory.

Modern methods have made it possible for almost anyone to bid most grand slams. Thus, South has almost enough to respond two spades to his partner's opening diamond bid. When he contents himself with one spade only, and is promptly raised to game it takes no imagination or brilliance for him to ask for aces and kings by means of Blackwood and to contract for a grand slam after his partner shows him the two aces and three kings that he is looking for.

There is one point of interest in South's bid of seven. He went to seven no-trump, not seven spades. There was no reason not to. South could count five spades, four hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. No-trump counts 10 points more, and as an added safety feature, nothing can be ruffed at no-trump.

The hand is also one that the experts classify as laydown, yet when it was played, South managed to go down. South won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs and led a low spade to his queen. West showed out and it was all over.

The reason that this hand is classified as a laydown is that there is one, and only one, correct way to play it. If spades are going to break 3-1 or 2-2 everyone makes the hand. If they break 4-0 with West having the four no one makes the hand, but if East holds all four, expert South always makes the hand because he guards against this by leading dummy's king of spades. West shows out and South is able to lead through East's jack-10 twice.

ROMEO AND JULIET take on a youthful look with Olivia Hussey, 15, and Leonard Whiting, 16, playing the star-crossed lovers in a forthcoming film. If it's authentically director Franco Zeffirelli was seeking in casting the two, he's still a year late on Miss Hussey. THE DOCTOR SAYS

Power Mower Operation Has Many Safety Rules

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When you operate your power mower, do you wear steel-toed boots and shin guards as has been suggested by some safety experts? If you do there are two things wrong with the picture. Protective shielding is not as important as observing the safety rules suggested for all operators and the person who needs the protection is frequently a child or innocent bystander who may be 100 or more feet away.

The popularity of the rotary mower is attested by the fact that about 4.5 million are sold every year. In spite of numerous warnings, however, the number of injuries caused by these machines is increasing. When several thousand persons each year are hit by either a loose object thrown by a rotary blade or a fragment broken off from such a blade, these can no longer be considered freak accidents.

Each year the new mowers are equipped with improved safety features but, since no one buys a new model every year, many of the older machines are still in use. Most accidents occur early in the mowing season. This is due in part to the fact that many operators are using a power mower for the first time and partly to the fact that old hands at the game fail to review and abide by the safety rules.

You should always start the season with a careful study of the manufacturer's instruction guide.

Never refuel your mower when the engine is hot or running.

See that children, adults and pets keep a reasonable distance away.

Remove loose bottles, stones and other potential missiles before you start mowing.

Adjust the speed of the blades well below the maximum. This will still cut your toughest grass, decrease the danger of accidents and increase the life of your mower. Never pull your mower backward while the motor is running.

Be careful not to let the discharge side of your mower approach fences or walls because solid debris striking such an obstruction may rebound with damaging speed.

Stop the motor before pushing your mower across gravel roads, curbs or gas or water valves in the lawn that are even slightly above ground level, and remember that any hole or depression in the lawn may allow the blade to come in contact with the ground.

Never leave a running motor unattended for even a few seconds.

Mow all inclined surfaces horizontally. (This does not apply to mowers in which the operator rides.)

Don't try to unclog your mower or tip it over to inspect it without first stopping the motor.

Technicality Aims to Destroy Right to Petition

There's a news story in this morning's Arkansas Gazette calculated to raise the blood pressure of every American who believes in political freedom and fair play.

The story discloses plans to nullify the petition calling for a state-wide vote on the proposed Arkansas Dairy Commission as set up by an act of the last General Assembly. Here is the gist of the Gazette's story:

"Opponents of the Commission filed 57,392 signatures to stay enforcement of the act creating the Commission by taking it to the voters in November 1968.

"State Senator Virgil T. Fletcher of Benton said that the volume of signatures made it obvious that the petition could not be challenged on sufficiency. He said the court suit contemplated by supporters of the act would attack the ballot title. The courts have said that the ballot title and popular name of initiated or referendum acts or amendments must clearly reflect the content of the measure."

Prior to 1955 it was traditional for the Arkansas Supreme Court to resolve all reasonable doubts on petitions submitted under Constitutional Amendment No. 7 (Initiative & Referendum) in favor of the petitioner. But in a petition I circulated at personal expense that year the court compromised itself with a flagrantly political decision upholding the sufficiency of signatures but ruling against the title.

Citizens of Arkansas will remember that miscarriage of justice. The Arkansas legislature had enacted a law exempting poultry and livestock feed from the 2 per cent state sales tax, and I circulated a petition calling for a state-wide referendum against the law, on the grounds that to let it stand would be an invitation to raise the state sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent (which is precisely what happened two years later.)

Herein lies the supreme court scandal around that 1955 petition:

1. My attorney picked for the petition title the language of the title under which the General Assembly enacted the law we sought to repeal.

2. As provided by Amendment No. 7 I submitted the petition title to the then attorney general, one Tom Gentry, and got his written approval. His "O. K. letter" is in The Star's vault—eternal evidence of a faithless public servant. For notwithstanding his written approval he waited until the petition was completed and filed with the secretary of state and then disowned this very letter.

3. Confronted with the technicality on the petition title the Arkansas Supreme Court deadlocked for many weeks, finally surrendered to political threats from the office of Governor Orval Faubus, and ruled the petition off the general election ballot of 1956.

I haven't forgotten 1956, nor will I ever forget—and this is a public warning to the Arkansas Supreme Court:

Don't try to do in the 1967 Dairy Commission case what you did on the 1955 sales-tax exemption petition. It is your duty to the people to uphold the right to petition—not destroy it with political technicalities.

BULLETIN

By ED SHEARER

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Highway Commission dealt a setback to the Turnpike Authority's plan to emphasize a western toll road in the state today and at the same time the commission chairman accused Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of involving politics in highway affairs.

The commission declined to approve a depth studies requested by the authority for studies of a western corridor and a Little Rock-to-Pine Bluff corridor.

The commission, however, authorized Highway Director Ward Goodman to sign an agreement with the Turnpike Authority for the commission to provide funds needed to contract for a feasibility study of 1,200 miles of proposed turnpike corridors.

Hussein to Ask Aid for His Country

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan is expected to ask President Johnson to help bail out his battered nation—No. 1 loser in the Arab-Israeli war—when the two talk at the White House today.

U.S. officials said Hussein's expected appeal for help will meet with sympathy from the President. But they said Israeli occupation of some of Jordan's most valuable territory makes unclear what action the United States could take.

Behind administration sympathy for Hussein and his nation is a king's long-time stance as the most pro-Western head of state in the Arab world. There also is recognition that Jordan needs speedy assistance in easing the burden of daily increasing numbers of refugees from land now held by the Israelis.

Officials note, however, that the refugee problem is international in scope and has been handled most effectively by the U.N. Relief and Work Agency, financed to a great extent by the United States.

Hussein, officials feel, does not come to Washington to speak for all the Arabs. He accomplished this part of his mission when he addressed the U.N. General Assembly Monday.

On the main problem, how to settle the Arab-Israeli dispute and prevent new hostilities, there is little Johnson and Hussein can do immediately, officials believe.

Hussein must be very careful not to detach himself to the slightest degree from the rigid Arab policy line, American experts say.

LR Police Shoot Man to Death

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Earnest Maxwell, 56, of Little Rock, was shot and killed by Little Rock Police Tuesday night after he slashed one officer with a butcher knife and cut his arm.

Officers said they received a call about 9:22 p.m. from Miss Edna Ewing who told them Maxwell had been to her apartment about three times threatening her life.

Authorities said while they were questioning Miss Ewing they heard a disturbance in the yard and saw Maxwell, armed with a knife and what was believed to be a gun. Officers reportedly told Maxwell several times to put down his weapons but he refused and they began firing.

Officers said Maxwell took off around the house and met Sgt. R. D. Ball who had circled the house. Maxwell reportedly slashed Ball's left arm and attempted to cut him twice more before being killed.

Authorities said they discovered what was thought to be Maxwell's gun was actually a plastic toy.

Governor Raps G&F Commission and State Highway Department

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller charged Tuesday night that the state Game and Fish Commission and the Arkansas Highway Department believe they are "insulated from the administration and the people" because they are constitutional committees.

Rockefeller called this inexcusable and promised "action and fireworks down the road."

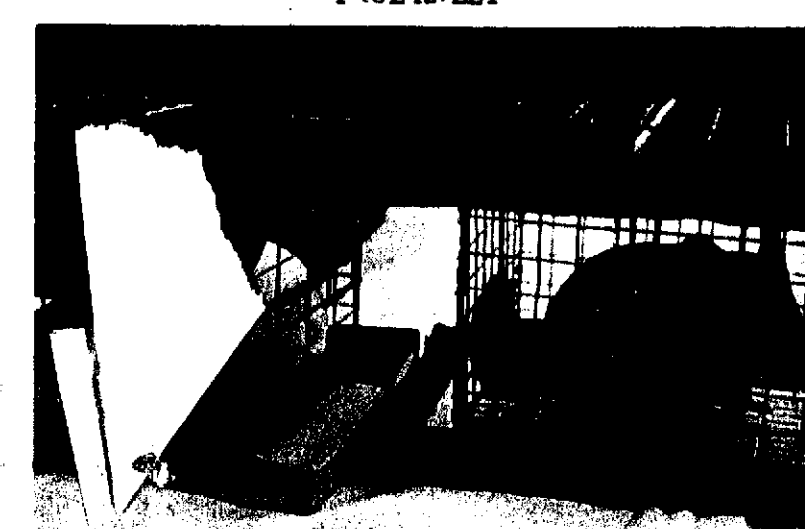

Rockefeller said he hoped the people of Arkansas would back him up when "I bring to the surface how the government is run in our state." Rockefeller made the remarks to less than 100 persons at the Miller County Courthouse on the second of his 14 scheduled regional tours of the state.

Rockefeller said earlier in the day at Washington (Hempstead County) that he had a "sneaking suspicion" the Highway Commission would find some

Joins Children's Colony Staff

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Milton C. Bessiere of Madison, Miss., has joined the staff at the Arkansas Children's Colony, Charles E. Acuff, Colony superintendent, announced today.

Acuff said Dr. Bessiere, a native of Hamlin, Tex., will assume duties next week at the McRae unit along with the new unit at Arkadelphia.

The Colony also was notified that a $24,991 grant has been approved for continuation of its in-service training program. The grant will allow the program to run through June 1968.

detail to avoid signing a contract proposed by the Turnpike Authority. The contract Rockefeller referred to is to pay for feasibility studies of possible turnpike corridors.

Rockefeller suggested the highway commissioners appear on television and answer questions from the people. He blamed the commission for technical delays in turnpike construction.

The governor said he was sorry a management survey of the two agencies had not been authorized by the legislature.

Rockefeller also took a swipe at former Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

"My predecessor said he knew all there was to know about Arkansas highways and didn't need to consult engineers," Rockefeller said. "Until Arkansasans get mad about this they're going to have a rough time."

City Board Deals With Routine Issues

Routine issues were taken up by the City Board of Directors in a meeting last night. Waller & Waller were awarded a contract to paint the steel doors, windows and tower at Municipal Airport for $3,362 and Joe Porterfield's bid to remove an airport building for $500 was accepted.

An offer of services of the E. L. Villereal Co., Inc., a bonding firm in connection with the proposed street bond issue was accepted.

Businessmen on West Avenue B where a sewer and water line is being laid asked the group to help improve conditions created by the work. A truck turned over in the area yesterday because of the condition of the street. The contractor will be contacted.

Although there was no objection to closing an unused portion of a street in the Frisco Addition the group delayed drawing up an ordinance for closing.

Texarkanian Choice for State Police

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The question of who is going to succeed Col. Herman Lindsey as director of the State Police seems well on its way to being answered.

Lynn A. Davis, 33, an FBI agent at Los Angeles, said Tuesday he was under consideration for the position, that he wanted the job and would consider it an honor to succeed Lindsey, who is retiring next month.

Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell told the Associated Press Tuesday night he hopes to deliver an opinion by the end of the week on whether Davis meets the residence requirements for the position.

Arkansas law provides that the State Police Director must have lived in Arkansas the 10 years prior to his appointment. Davis said Tuesday he owns property in Texarkana and considers it his hometown.

Faubus Asks Funds for His Library

HUNTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Tuesday contributions towards the construction of a library and preservation of the Greasy Creek School (Madison County) would be welcome.

Faubus said he wanted to build the library on a knoll near his new home here. He said the library would contain his scrap books, photographs, official state documents, his military records, correspondence covering his six terms in office and newspaper cartoons along with other materials.

Faubus said several persons had offered to contribute and that the Orval E. Faubus Foundation would handle the funds.

Faubus said he would hate to see his records "shattered and lost." He said he would like for the records to be "preserved where they can be seen and studied in the future by anyone who wishes to do so."

Tax Hike Legislation Seems Unlikely Before Late in the Summer

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite prodding this week from two influential administration figures, Congress is unlikely to begin considering until late summer the income tax surcharge President Johnson proposed six months ago.

Chairman William McClesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board renewed Monday the call for a surcharge, saying he would support a steeper increase than the proposed six percent if needed to combat inflation.

Then on Tuesday, Chairman Gardner Ackley of Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers again urged congressional consideration of the surcharge, saying no figure lower than six percent would do the job.

But the congressional timetable appears to rule out hearings at least until August, even if Johnson were to send to Capitol Hill legislation spelling out his tax proposals—which he has not done.

There were indications Johnson, who originally asked for an increase effective Saturday, might be happy to have one six months later.

The House Ways and Means Committee, where all tax legislation must originate, is nowhere near finished with its consideration of a complex bill to amend the Social Security System and related programs such as Medicare. The House begins a 10-day July 4 recess Thursday, as does the Senate.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., has said the committee may have a Social Security bill ready in July, but other committee members speculate about dates like Aug. 15. Another week or 10 days would be required for House consideration and passage, and the committee would not take up another major measure during this period.

Violation of Stock Act Likely

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Securities Commissioner Donald S. Smith said Tuesday the General Security Corp. of Little Rock and two persons associated with the firm may have violated the state Securities Act by issuing a misleading prospectus to sell stock.

Smith issued a cease and desist order against the firm and identified the two men involved as Wilbur Max Ritter and Fred R. Lowe.

Smith said a formal investigation would be conducted Thursday morning and ordered the corporation and Ritter, the firm's president, to be present.

Bombs Rain on Troop Buildup Area

SAIGON (AP) — B52 bombers unloaded a rain of bombs today on Communist positions in two provinces where U.S. ground troops face threatening enemy buildups.

The bombers plastered 180,000 pounds of bombs on Red infiltration routes in Quang Tri Province adjoining the demilitarized zone—where a heavy Red rocket and mortar barrage killed nine Marines and wounded 125 Tuesday—and unleashed a similar attack in the highlands of Kontum Province where infiltrating Red troops recently decimated an American paratroop company.

Ground fighting reported by U.S. military headquarters also centered in the DMZ and highland areas.

A sweeping force of more than 300 U.S. paratroops from the 173rd Airborne Brigade jumped about 50 patrolling Reds early today. In a sharp skirmish in the jungles of Kontum Province the paratroopers killed six North Vietnamese and took one prisoner. Two Americans were killed and eight wounded.

In Quang Tri, around the isolated western flank outpost of Khe Sanh, U.S. Marines kept up continual patrols to thwart Communist assaults. Ten Marines were killed in clashes Tuesday and 27 were wounded, but the Leathernecks said they killed 28 North Vietnamese regulars.

South Vietnamese military headquarters also reported a series of clashes with guerrillas in the Mekong Delta in which 49 of the enemy were killed. In one savage fight Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, a band of about 20 militiamen suffered heavy losses while beating off a five-hour attack with the aid of circling American gunships that raked the attacking Reds with their fire.

North of Saigon, the toll from a mine that demolished a bus Tuesday rose to 40 South Vietnamese civilians killed as U.S. troops searching at dawn found 17 more bodies. Ten others were wounded in the explosion. The number killed was one of the highest in a single terrorist attack in the war.

Kosygin and Castro Not in Agreement

HAVANA (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Prime Minister Fidel Castro have disagreed in their talks, the official Soviet news agency Tass indicated today.

Tass reported from Havana that the two leaders exchanged opinions Tuesday on a number of questions of mutual interest.

Use of the word "frank" in such announcements normally means disagreement. There was no mention of "identity of views" or any other phrasing indicating accord, although Tass called the talks "friendly."

Tass did not disclose subjects discussed, but the makeup of the Cuban delegation meeting with Kosygin indicated military matters were covered. Four of the nine top Cubans listed by Tass as participating in the talks were military leaders.

They were Defense Minister Raul Castro, Fidel's brother; First Deputy Defense Minister Juan Almeida, and Deputy Defense Ministers Sergio Del Valle and Guillermo Garcia.

Garland Files School Petitions

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Petitions containing 3,216 signatures were filed with Secretary of State Kelly Bryant Tuesday by the Garland County Junior College and Vocational School Committee.

The 123 petitions call for a special election Aug. 6 to vote on a $1 mill tax needed to finance construction and operation of the proposed school.

Mrs. Violet Burton of Hot Springs, chairman of the committee, said there has not been any indication of organized opposition to the proposal. Approximately 1,900 signatures are required to get the proposal on the ballot.
